

King of Prussia Equipment Holds Husqvarna Service School

On Nov. 5, 2016, King of Prussia Equipment and Husqvarna Construction Products held a one-day service seminar for Soff-Cut early entry saws and vacuums.

The service school started at 8 a.m. at King of Prussia Equipment Corp's shop. Thirteen participants from eight companies as far west as Williamsport, Pa., and as far south as Millville, N.J., attended the seminar. The service school ended at 2 p.m. with each participant receiving a "Husqvarna Construction Products Certificate of Attendance" for successfully completing "The Soff-Cut Technical Service Training Seminar." Hooded sweatshirts for each participant also were distributed by Husqvarna Construction Products.

Steward Carr, North East Soff-Cut specialist and Eufenio Bucol, Soff-Cut service representative from Corona, Calif., both conducted and instructed the seminar. Carr used a PowerPoint presentation along with service binders to fully explain each Soff-Cut saw and vacuum's features, benefits and necessary alignments and maintenance. Bucol provided hands-on training for each participant of the Soff-Cut 150, 4000, 4200 and 1000 vacuum. The service binders were a follow up for future reference when servicing the saws and
